The hits keep coming. He called me yesterday regarding his strong desire to present his "findings" to the DEA and to the NFLPS at the Combines re: the prescribing practices of team physicians in the NFL. I have told him he cannot present it - but he may have a poster in the poster room. Thus, we'll have to make sure Joe Rannazzisi doesn't go in the poster room!!

Thanks for the link.

All – I'd like to share a few summary comments from a long conversation I had with Dave Chao this afternoon. This is not to propagate rumors or to be disingenuous to Dave. But it is to make sure we're all on the same page as we move forward towards the Combines regarding this sensitive topic.

Of course, please don't cc or forward this note further.

Summary . . .

- First point Dave made was that he wants everyone to know that he has done or said nothing to focus the attention on other teams in spite of him being unfairly accused by the DEA
- He is convinced that the "League Office doesn't have our backs", basing this comment primarily related to the issue where there wasn't a statement from the NFL League Office after his investigation (as he had wanted and requested) stating that the League Office supports all of the team physicians' practices, including Dave's
- Very big issue he, and others, are concerned about is "treating" players and coaches in states where the team physician is not licensed [REDACTED]
- He mentioned that he and his ATC (Collins) are performing a study on the narcotic dispensing practices of the NFL teams over the course of this past year, and he wants to present his information in discussions at the Combines as well as a poster presentation. He told me (inaccurately based on my discussion with Art) that Art told him it was absolutely fine and OK for him to do so, and that he should talk to me in case I wanted to use the information in my and our discussions with the DEA representatives at our EC meeting and the Friday evening meeting. Wow.
 - I was very clear and adamant and firm in my comments that he needs to cease this study right away, that it serves no purpose other than Dave Chao covering Dave Chao's backside, will clearly be received by his peers as an effort to focus the attention on others in hope of taking the focus off of him (an accusation, as noted above, he has been proud to avoid thus far), and that is has no scientific basis as it relates to the treatment of NFL athletes. I will send another email to Ellen Rice re: this and cc you guys.

- o He told me that he has had 3 cases cancel this week, and another 12 patients ask specifically about his ongoing DEA inquiry / investigation. He wants us and the League to come to his defense.
- o He said he will take my comments "under consideration"
- o I spoke with Ryan Vermillion subsequently, who will speak to John Norwig this evening, to collectively squelch this effort at the ATC level.
- o What a bad idea, huh?

That's about it. Again – not to torch Dave. But I do believe all of us should be in the loop with these comments as they may come up again in one form or another.

Thanks for maintaining confidentiality.

Talk soon,

Understand including your frustration. Why don't we (Pat, Tony, John, James, you and I) try to sit down at the Combine so we can discuss and try to resolve? I think it will be much easier to do that than continuing this dialogue through email. Let me know if this works for you and I will try to coordinate. Thanks.

Thanks for the quick reply for clarification, this survey/study was put together by the entire chargers medical staff (atc and md). It was submitted to the nfls thru art rellig to present as part of the annual combine scientific meeting. art rellig approved it to be as a poster presentation. we discussed the study with the chargers. we had told them all along that if the league (or the chargers) wanted to stop the survey, we would do so. we have stopped the study. we continue to be "team" players.

if there is an impression that i have criticized the commissioner or jeff pash, that is in error. i have not had any contact with the commissioner or jeff pash: therefore, i have nothing to be critical about in regards to them. i would offer a personal apology for that erroneous impression.'

i hope you and everyone realize that i have taken the high road on this issue to my own personal detriment. the dea investigation started as a professional athlete/nfl issue and i was dragged in. (it was never my personal investigation). the chargers medical staff never gave kevin ellison any vicodin. i never wrote any prescriptions to myself. (i ordered medicine for player and staff use). we have tracked all the medications and passed all of the nfl audits. the main issue the dea had with the chargers is that we (like all other teams) travelled with controlled substances. it would have been easy for me to turn the public focus to the entire league and my nfl colleagues by saying "we all do it that way". i hope everyone realizes that i purposefully did not do that. i did not want my colleagues going thru what i have gone thru. i continue to believe this to be a league wide issue. i look forward to participating in a league-wide solution. we all want to continue to provide the best medical care possible.

I am happy to communicate with anyone to assist in this process. thanks.

David, this survey was sent by an assistant ATC from the Chargers to team ATCs asking them complete the survey with instructions that consultation with the team physicians was not necessary. Your name was not mentioned on the cover email or survey (to the best of my recollection) and again by memory there was no mention in any manner that the survey was at your request. Thank you for the clarification.

I certainly have no problem contacting you directly for any problem and certainly if I had known that this survey was yours would have discussed with Pat Connor rather than John Norwig.

It has come to our attention that you continue to criticize the Commissioner, Jeff Pash and me for not publicly supporting you in your personal investigation by the DEA. I would be happy to try to facilitate a teleconference with Jeff Pash, Chargers management and me to discuss and hopefully put this issue to rest once and for all as this is becoming a distraction to all involved.

Thank you.

hello elliot

James Collins received your request to stop our medication survey. John Norwig relayed your request to James. We will follow the league's wishes to stop the study. I have notified Art Rettig that we are withdrawing our study.

In the future, please contact me directly if you have any issues. Thanks
